Investing in the Greyfriars Conservation Area
2015 - 2020

Thanks to significant local support, the Heritage Lottery Fund have confirmed funding for the Greyfriars Townscape Heritage Initiative (THI).

Leicester City Council is working alongside a number of local organisations including the University of Leicester, De Montfort University, Leicester Cathedral, Leicester College, Leicester’s Civic Society as well as a range of local community groups.

Who is involved?
Leicester City Council
Although a large proportion of the historic buildings have retained their architectural features, the area has suffered from a lack of building repairs and maintenance. The area is of special architectural and historic interest, as it was one of the first three conservation areas to be established in Leicester.

A large part of Georgian Leicester is preserved in the central part of the conservation area, showing how the town was laid out and developed in the latter part of the 18th century. To the south there are a number of warehouse and factory buildings dating from the 19th century, demonstrating economic change and social history of the area.

The THI aims to repair and restore these historic buildings, whilst ensuring their long-term preservation.

Why Greyfriars Conservation Area?
The Greyfriars Conservation Area has a unique character. It is full of important heritage and architectural treasures, built up over centuries.
Greyfriars has come to worldwide attention following the discovery of the remains of King Richard III in the car park at the back of the council buildings on St. Martin’s. The discovery in 2012 has put Leicester, and specifically the Greyfriars area on the tourist map as well as completely changing our understanding of the local history and development. It has raised the importance of Greyfriars from being locally interesting to internationally significant.
